

How Do Country, Species, and Processing Methods Shape Coffee Ratings?

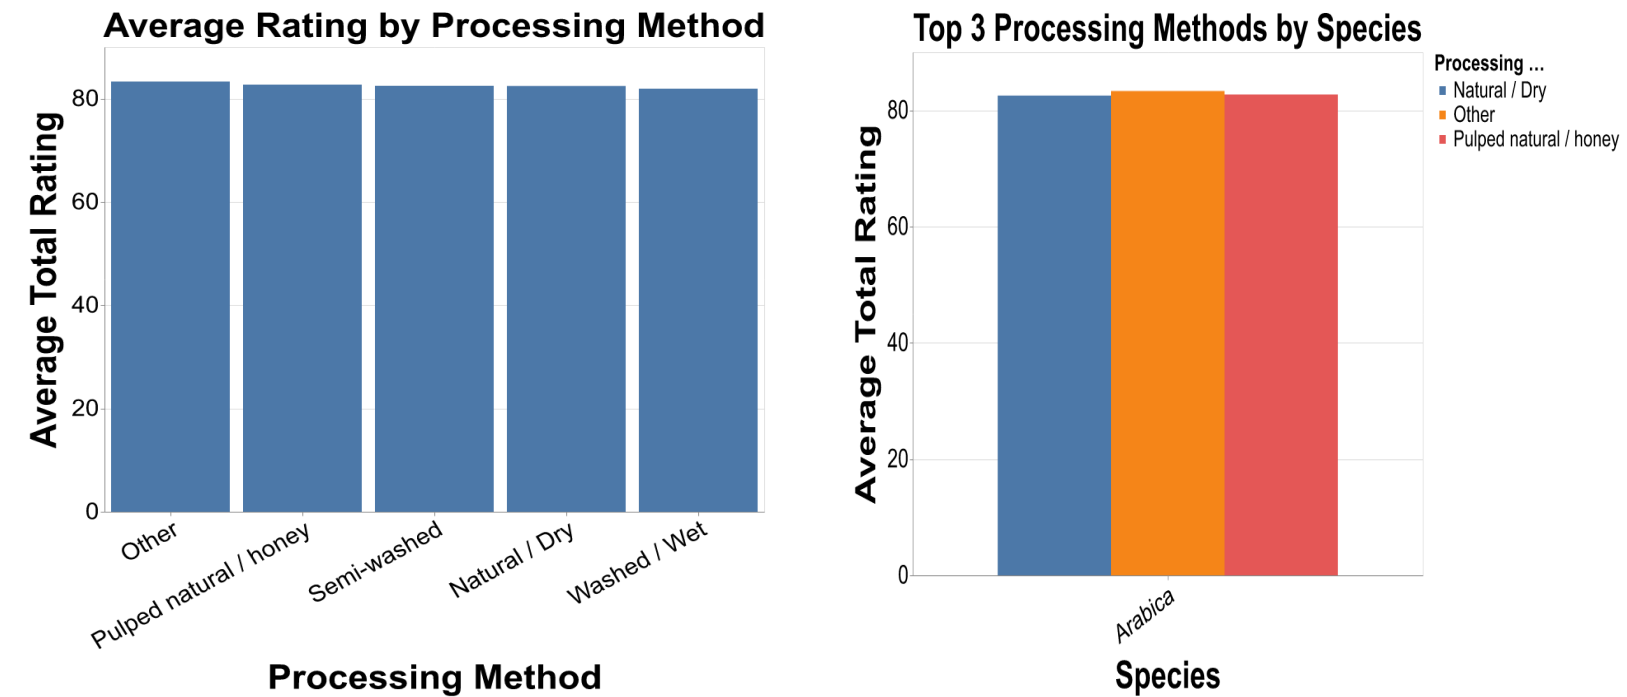

INTRODUCTION

Coffee ratings vary by country, species, and processing method worldwide. This poster analyzes average and total ratings across 12 countries and processing types. It highlights top countries and methods for Arabica coffee species.

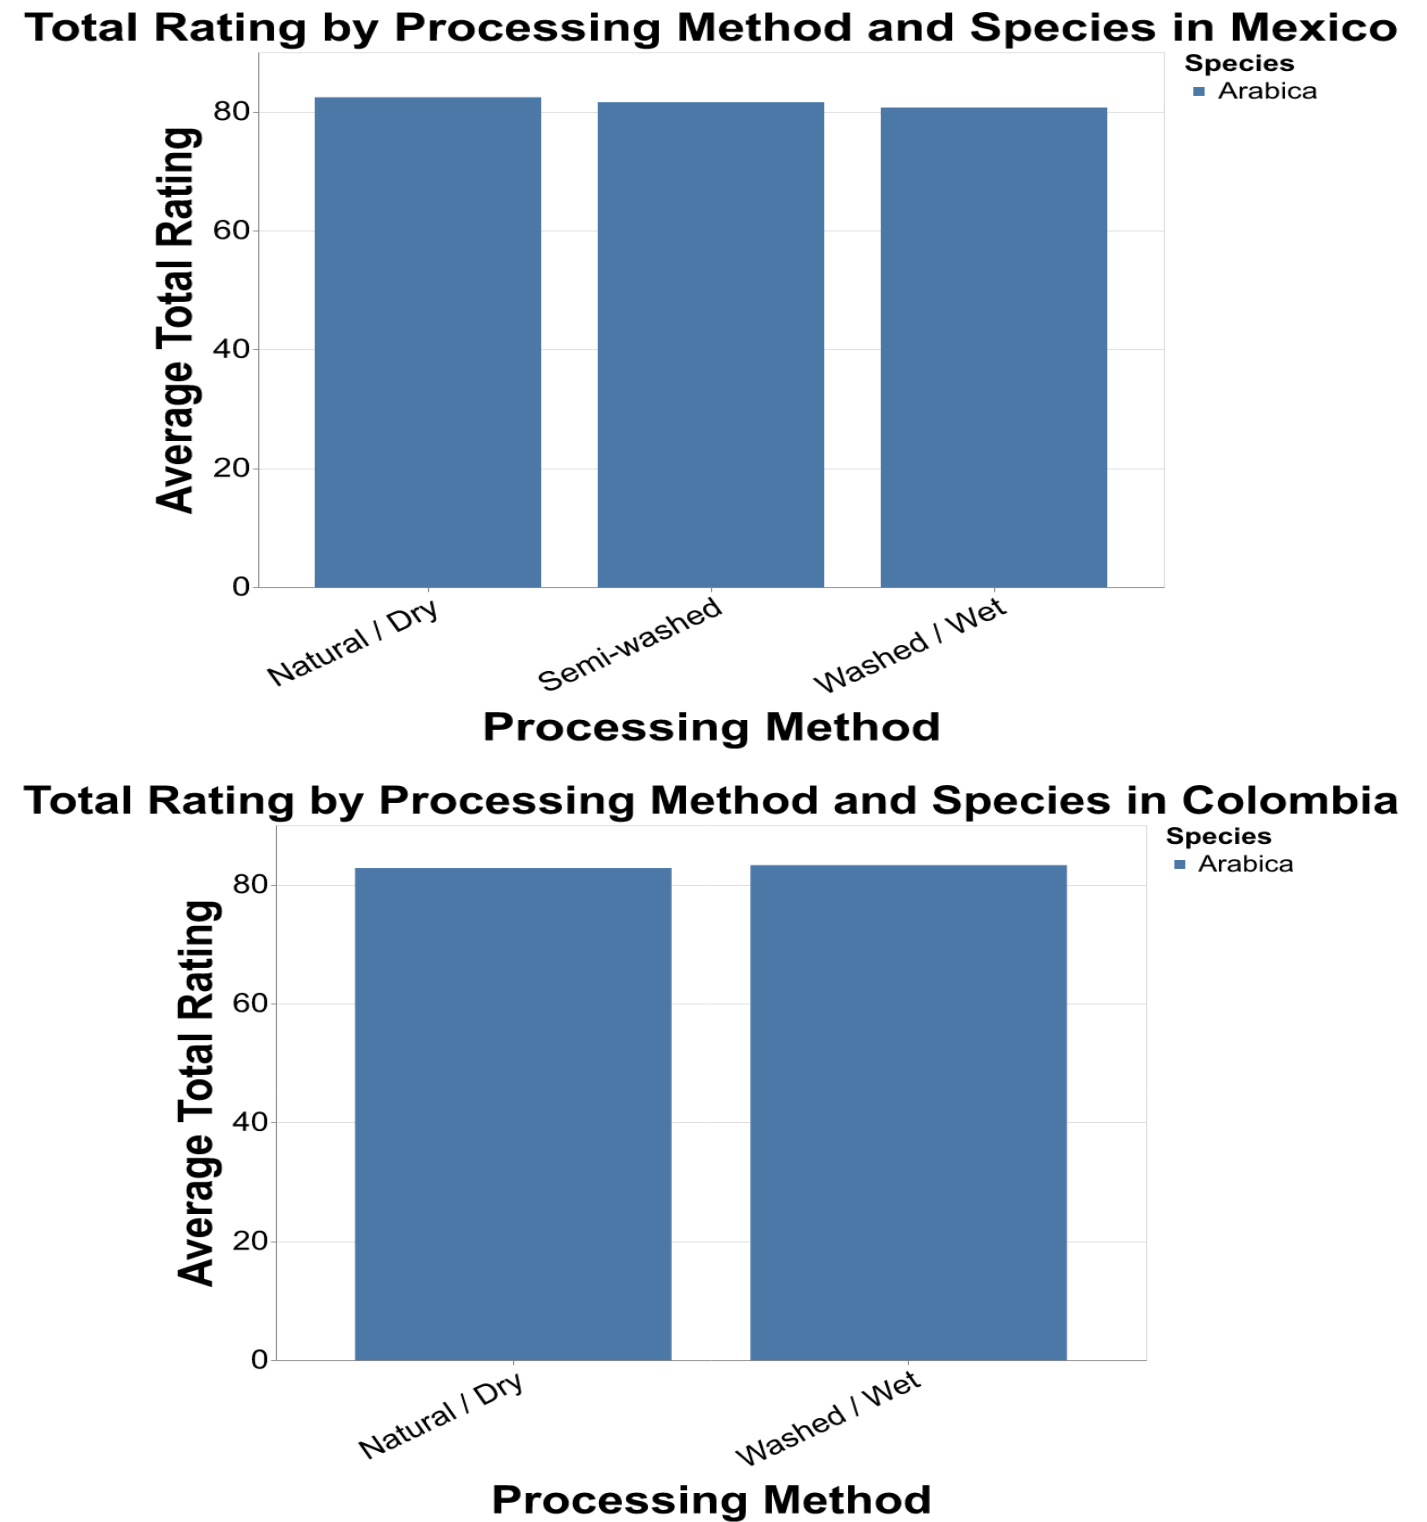

01 Countries vary in average total rating, with top three leading in species total rating.

02 Processing methods differ in average rating, with top three methods leading in species count.

03 Mexico and Colombia show distinct rating patterns by processing method and species.

CONCLUSION

Coffee ratings differ significantly across countries, species, and processing methods. Top countries lead in average total ratings and species total ratings. Processing methods also vary in average ratings and species counts. Mexico and Colombia display unique rating patterns by method and species.