

How Do Victim Age and Race Patterns Differ Across Crime Types and Cities?

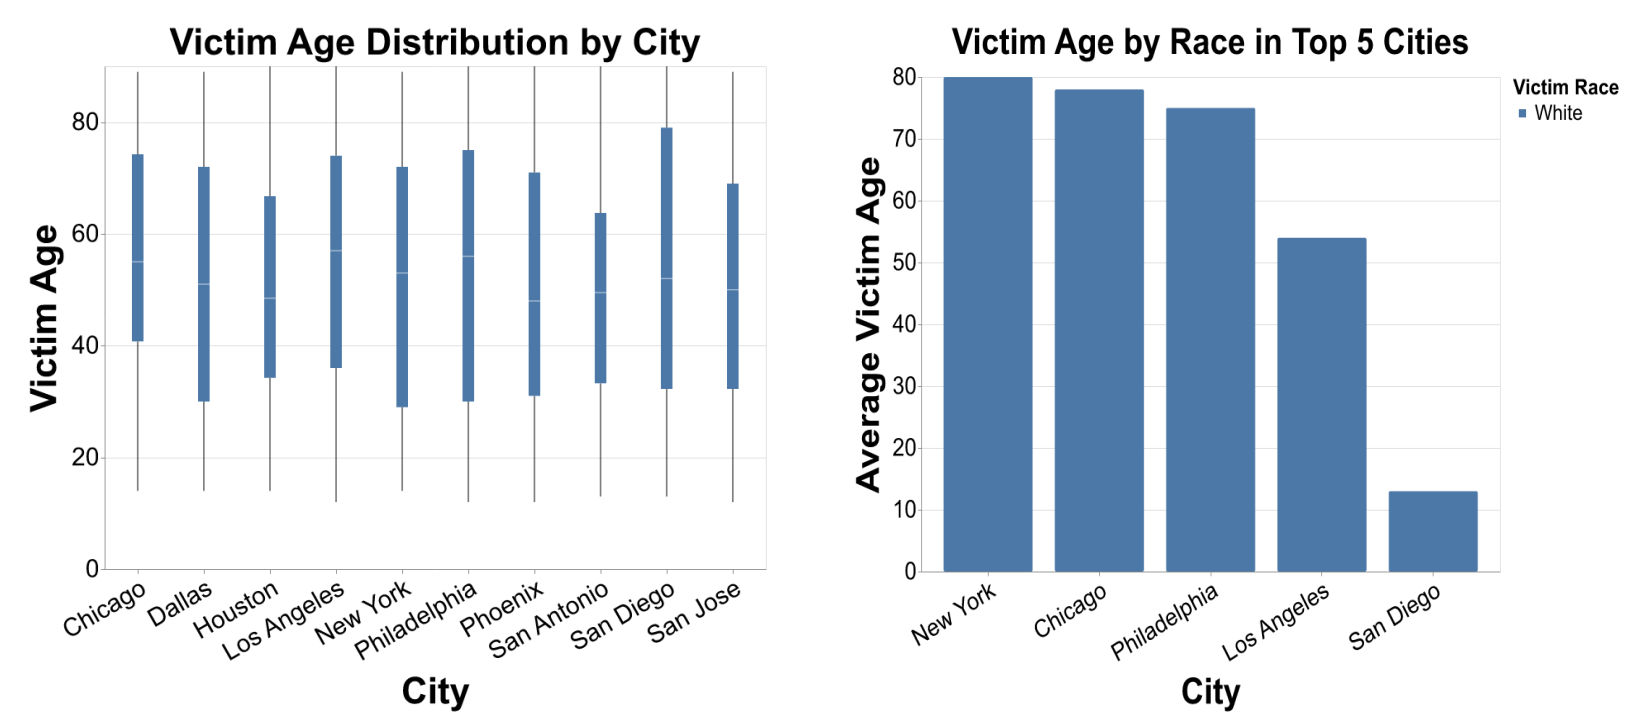

INTRODUCTION

Victim age varies by crime type, race, and city, with notable differences. This poster analyzes victim age patterns across major U.S. cities and crime categories. Data includes age and race distributions for top crimes and cities.

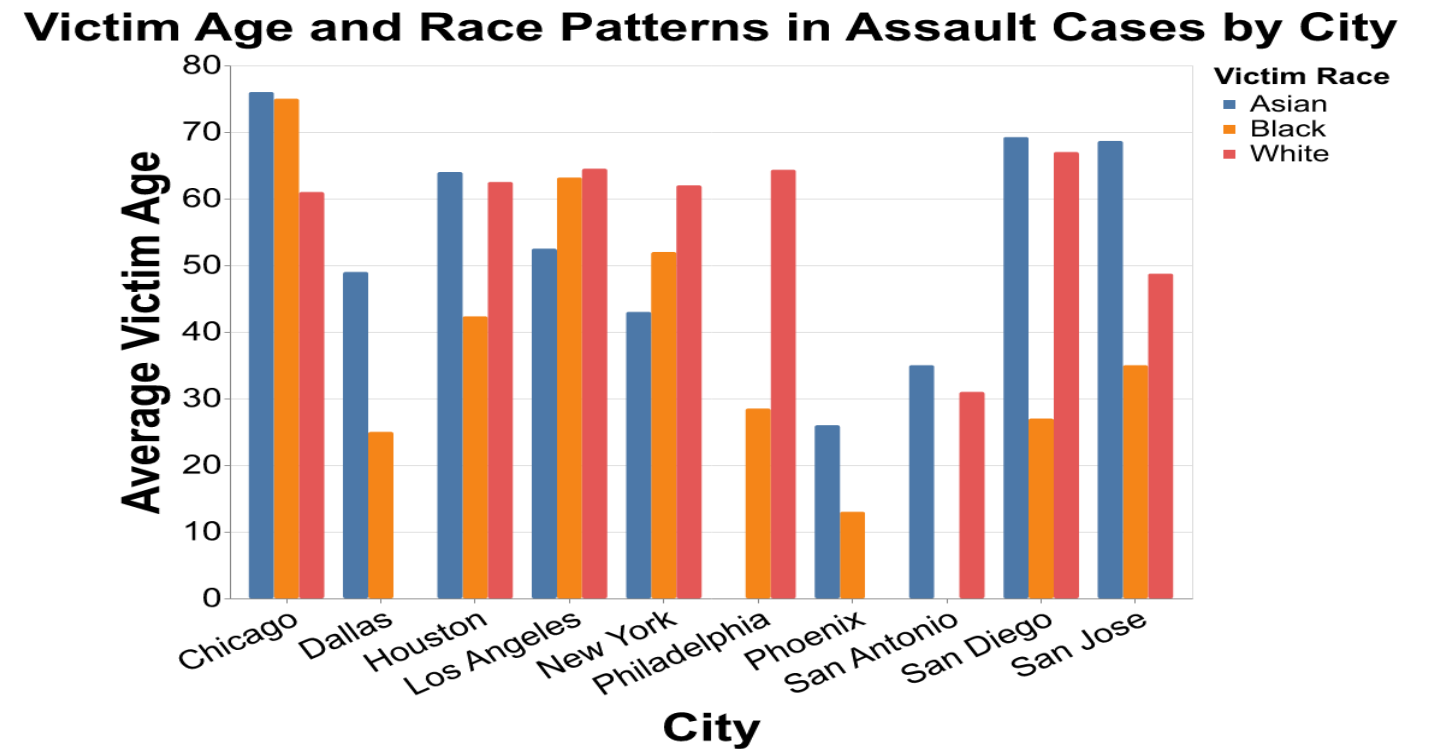

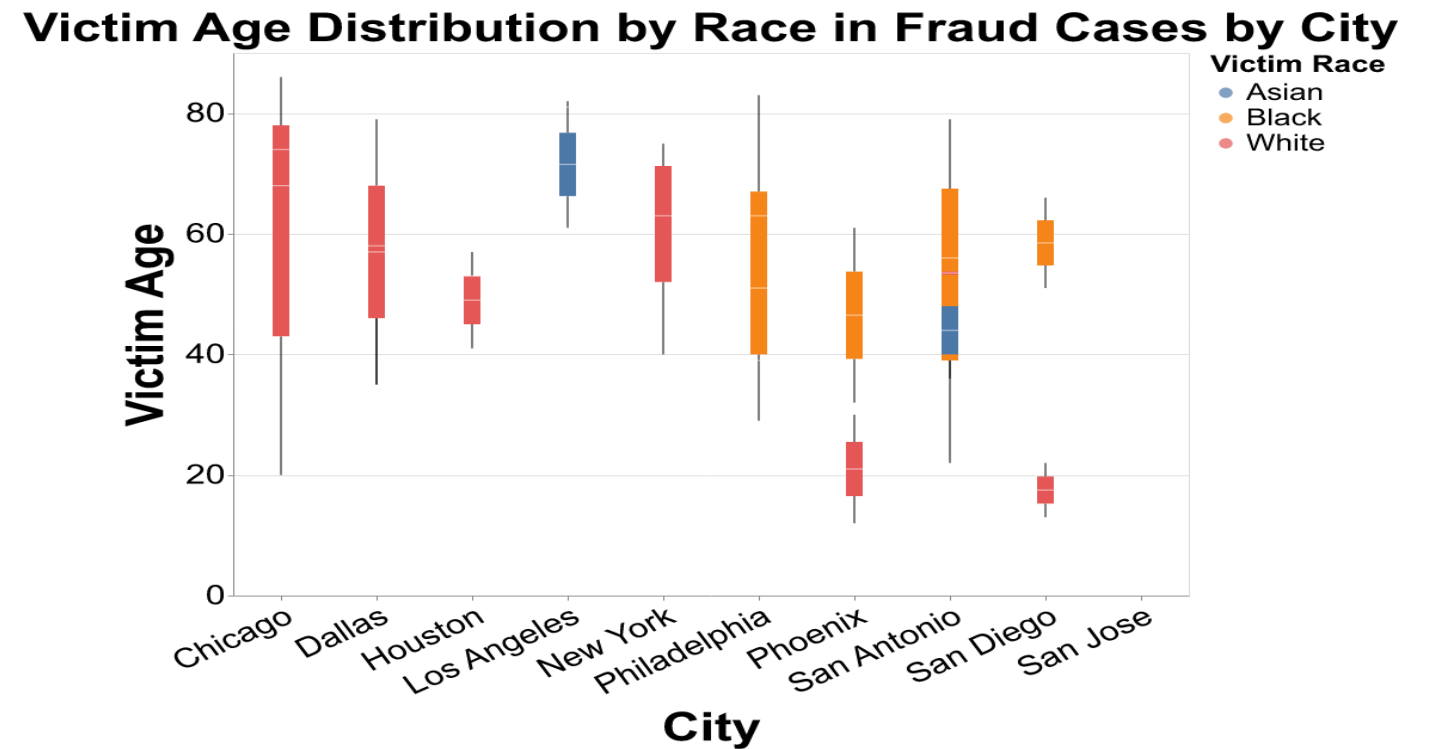

01 Victim age varies significantly across crime types, highlighting the youngest affected crimes.

02 Victim age differs by city and race, revealing demographic patterns in major cities.

03 Fraud and assault cases show distinct victim age and race patterns across cities.

CONCLUSION

Victim age varies widely depending on crime type, city, and race. Younger victims are more common in certain crime categories. Demographic patterns differ significantly across major U.S. cities. Fraud and assault crimes show unique age and race victim trends.